

Docket # 04-208 I am strongly opposed to cell phone companies hiding their cost of doing business in spurious fees that are passed on to the consumer. Their deceptive tactics make it impossible for a consumer to compare rates of cell phone carriers. Cell phone companies pass on to consumers such fees as: "regulatory compliance and proceedings costs", "property tax costs", "regulatory cost of recovery fee", and "universal services fund contribution" ! Cell phone providers should be required to include these fees, which they assess to ALL of their customers, in their rate plans in order to give the consumer reasonably accurate information when comparing carriers. Thank you
